FERRIS STATE HOCKEY EXPERIENCE – THE “DAWG POUND”

“Since the institution of our student section “the Dawg Pound,” this has become one of the toughest places to play in all of college hockey. You read quotes about it from people all over the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, especially the opposition’s goaltenders. They just hate coming in here because the crowd is always riding them. It’s just outstanding to see the way our students support the Bulldog Hockey program.”

– Ferris State Athletics Director Tom Kirinovic

“The Dawg Pound is a great lift for us every time we hit the ice. It is the best student section in all of college hockey.”

– Ferris State sophomore defenseman and 2005-06 team captain Adam Welch

“The atmosphere in which the student section has developed over time gives our players a distinct advantage, so much as it seems like we have a seventh man on the ice. We, as a coaching staff, believe it has become the toughest facility for opposing teams to play in.”

– Ferris State Associate Head Coach Drew Famulak

“The best experience I am going to take from my four years here, beyond all the great victories and the championship season, is the electricity and support from the Dawg Pound.”

– Former Ferris State standout Jeff Legue

2005-06 – “The Year of The Dog!”
