

The Ferris State women's volleyball program has built an unmatched tradition since moving into the Ewigleben Sports Arena in 1981. In an effort to uphold FSU's rich history, a campaign was launched in the spring of 2004 to renovate and upgrade the program's existing locker room facility.

The project, which was completed in the summer of 2004, included the addition of 20 custom-built wood lockers, a study lounge and video room for daily utilization. The renovation also entailed the installation of storage cabinets and new flooring to enhance the facility's interior appearance.

The "Bulldog Rally" campaign funded a significant portion of the project through private donations, which were earmarked towards the renovation. The campaign solicited private financial support to provide for the construction and installation of the custom-built lockers.

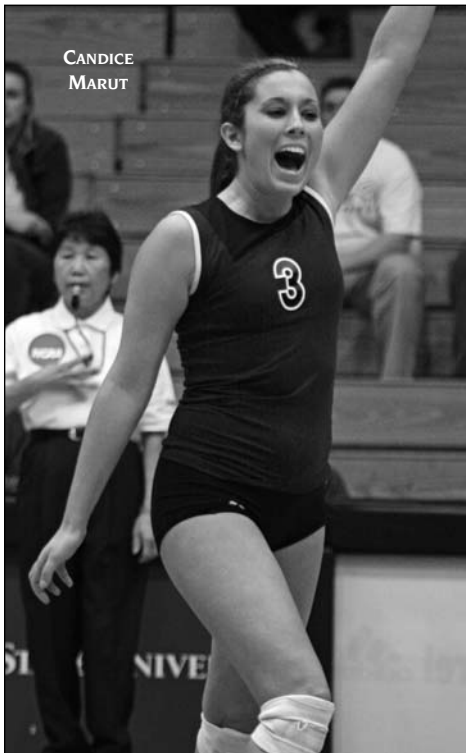

The upgraded locker room, combined with FSU's volleyball-only playing surface in the Ewigleben Sports Arena, continues to enhance Ferris' ability to attract high quality student-athletes and provides current team members with the resources necessary to compete at the NCAA Division II level.
