Hybrid Work
(An option where employees work both in the workplace and remotely)
Interim Guidelines January 2022
Note: guidelines will be reviewed in six months

GOALS

- Providing guidance to supervisors and employees when considering a hybrid work arrangement and allow for flexibility and consistency.
- Recognize the growing demands on employees and the increasing challenges of finding new and better ways to provide services and meet university goals.
- Workplace flexibility provides ways to successfully manage time, space, and workload. The university supports flexible work arrangements when feasible, to achieve a highly productive work environment that enables employees to balance work and personal needs while providing workforce predictability and stability.
- Workplace flexibility can be a strategy for using resources efficiently.
- Support employees’ work-life balance while also fulfilling University goals and providing a high-performance work environment.
- Recruitment of new hires and retention of high performers.
- Collaboration and communication.

SUMMARY
Ferris State University considers hybrid work to be a viable work arrangement in cases where the job, the individual and the supervisor are well-suited to such an arrangement. Most positions have a primary campus work location designation at an FSU owned or leased facility. Alternative locations may be supported for short periods and do not change the primary work location for a position. Employees may work from alternative locations, such as their home, for part of their regular work week. It is not the intent of these guidelines for any position that has been assigned a campus work location to transition to a 100% remote work position.

Suitability for hybrid work is based upon the job assignment and the individual employee and is to be determined in consultation with the employee’s supervisor, the divisional leader (e.g., Associate Vice President, Dean, Director) and Vice President/President per these guidelines.
Informal hybrid work arrangements, such as working during business travel or a one-day event, do not require completion of a Hybrid Work Agreement. Hybrid Work arrangements, which are long-term, short term and/or reoccurring require the completion and approval of the Hybrid Work Agreement.

This process is not intended to change the current working assignments of online adjunct staff or professors who complete part of their non-student contact time off campus.

Procedures/Descriptions/Definitions

Scope

These guidelines apply to all employee (academic or non-academic) classifications at FSU. The scope of these guidelines is to provide procedures for a hybrid work schedule for eligible employees. Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) employees (i.e., represented) must also comply with rules outlined in their respective Collective Bargaining Agreements.

Hybrid Work Arrangement Guidelines

1. Eligibility
   a. All eligible employees can request a hybrid work arrangement; however, not all positions lend themselves to this type of agreement. Upon application, positions will be evaluated to determine suitability for hybrid work.
   b. The request for a hybrid work arrangement must meet the needs, requirements, and constraints of both the University and the employee. Departmental needs, impact on service to students, enrollment, customer service, co-workers and operations must be considered in the decision-making process for hybrid work arrangements.
   c. Individuals who meet or exceed performance standards are typically good candidates for hybrid work arrangements. Individuals in corrective action or on a performance improvement plan are not eligible for hybrid work arrangements.
   d. Individuals whose position includes duties that require face-to-face interaction, e.g., food service, custodial, grounds, maintenance, public safety, health care are not eligible for a hybrid work arrangement.
   e. Student workers are not eligible for hybrid work arrangements.
2. Guiding Principles

a. Successful leadership involves maximizing two top priorities for hybrid work arrangements:
   i. Optimize academics, student life, collegiality, and operations; and
   ii. Shift to a more progressive work culture to recruit and retain talent.

b. An employee’s first responsibility is to fulfill their job responsibilities. Performance expectations for employees with an approved Hybrid Work Agreement increase in terms of maintaining connectivity to the work location and ensuring that their hybrid work agreement does not increase the workload of others or affect/impair major operational functions. Supervisors have an increased responsibility for managing employee performance and must adjust the framework for administering performance evaluations in a manner consistent with the flexibility of the hybrid work arrangement. For those employees utilizing a Hybrid Work Schedule, the evaluation of their performance while working remote, must be included in their annual evaluation.

c. Supervisors must implement hybrid work arrangements consistent with the Affirmative Action, Equal Employment Opportunity, and Non-discrimination / Harassment policy.

d. If an employee is seeking a hybrid work arrangement to manage a health or caregiving-related situation for themselves or a family member, the employee needs to consult with HR to determine if their situation would be more appropriately considered under the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA) or should be explored as a reasonable accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

e. Hybrid work is not to be used for long-term childcare purposes.

f. Employees are expected to work their normal work schedule unless they receive their supervisor’s prior approval to adjusting their schedule. Any adjustment to work schedules must include working during the core operational hours. Please refer to specific CBA’s and/or the HRPP Flextime policy for further information.

g. Employees must remain productive and responsive during their scheduled work hours.

h. Employees are expected to maintain a presence with their department, division, or school. Presence may be maintained by attending meetings or on-site campus events/programs in person and/or using appropriate technology including but not limited to a computer, email, telephone, messaging applications, video conferencing, and/or text messaging.
i. The employee is expected to maintain the same response times as if they were at their regular FSU location and will make themselves available to attend scheduled work meetings as required and/or requested. This includes, but is not limited to, timely response(s) to telephone and email messages from students, prospective students, parents, alumni, benefactors, co-workers, and others who they would normally engage with as part of their work assignment.

j. While working under a Hybrid Work Agreement, the employee is expected to attend face to face meetings as scheduled, even if the meeting is scheduled on their “remote day”. The employee may not excuse themselves from required meetings due to a “remote day”, nor is it reasonable for the employee to request the meeting to be conducted in dual manner in order to accommodate their remote work.

k. Employees must have a working telephone and/or cellphone, and reliable internet at their hybrid location. Employees must ensure that incoming calls to their office phone are forwarded to their hybrid location phone or mobile phone.

l. Employees may not be located outside of the State of Michigan as part of their Hybrid Work Agreement.

m. Personal tasks and errands should only be performed during the employee’s scheduled breaks and lunches, or other arranged time off as normally would done while in the office.

n. Employees must use university issued computer and Ferris email to perform their duties and follow all policies regarding confidentiality, access to information, etc.

o. Employees must have access to a safe and ergonomically correct workplace with consistent wireless/internet access and cell signal (the University will not provide equipment for off-site workspaces nor equipment or funds for connectivity services for voluntary hybrid work requests.

p. If discussions of private, confidential, protected or any other non-public personal data are part of the employee’s job duties, employees are required to have a private space available, and others must be restricted from this space during such discussions.

q. Employees working remotely are required to adhere to all existing policies, procedures and guidelines safeguarding confidential and protected information and other policies regarding the use of technology.

r. The University is not responsible for operating costs of any personal equipment including, but not limited to, computers, printers, personal devices, cellular or standard telephones, or internet service; home maintenance of personal equipment; or any other incidental costs (utility provider costs, telephone costs, internet costs, or for any supply costs used in the home) associated with an employee fulfilling responsibilities pursuant to a voluntary alternative work arrangement under this guideline.

s. Expectations of the supervisor (the person to whom the employee directly reports) should be clearly communicated to all hybrid employees in writing.

t. At the request of the University or the employee, the elements of a hybrid work agreement may be modified in writing by mutual agreement and reflected in a new/updated written hybrid work or telecommuting agreement.

u. This guideline is not intended to affect any rights or obligations included within any collective bargaining agreements.

v. Hybrid work arrangements are voluntary and at any point in time may be ended by the University in writing.

Procedures
Proposals for Hybrid Work or Telecommuting arrangements may take place in one of two ways:

a. An employee who desires such a work arrangement submits a written email request to their supervisor/dean/department head, which submission should include a proposed FSU Hybrid Work Agreement.

b. When a supervisor believes a hybrid work arrangement maybe advisable, after a careful analysis of the specific roles reporting to him/her they will discuss this need with the appropriate employees.

The supervisor and employee must evaluate the suitability of a hybrid work arrangement, paying particular attention to the guidelines provided. Once the arrangement is agreed upon between the supervisor, employee, The Dean or Director and the appropriate Vice President, a Hybrid Work Agreement form will be completed, documenting the elements of the proposed arrangement with signatures of approval.

All parties must sign-off on agreement for the agreement to be valid.

If the request is granted, the supervisor must send an electronic copy of any signed agreement to Human Resources. Human Resources staff will maintain a record of these agreements and enter the approved document into the personnel record.
