FACTS AND FIGURES

HISTORY

Ferris State University is named for its founder, Woodbridge N. Ferris (1853-1928), a respected Michigan educator and statesman who served two terms as the governor of the state of Michigan and was elected to the United States Senate.

Founded in 1884 as a private institution by Mr. Ferris, the institution became affiliated with the state of Michigan in 1950, was named Ferris State College in 1963 by the Michigan Legislature, and obtained university status in 1987.

The University's founding concept of providing students with marketable skills, though intended at the time for individuals who had lost their jobs following declines in the lumber and mining industries, remains relevant in today's fast-changing society. A distinctive combination of academic programs and a continuing tradition of career-oriented education have made Ferris a nationally recognized leader in preparing men and women for useful careers and enlightened citizenship in numerous health, technical, educational, business and other professional fields.

LOCATION

The Ferris State University campus is located in Big Rapids, a west-central Michigan city of approximately 12,600 in the vacation-recreation region. The campus is readily accessible by the US-131 expressway and state highway M-20. Big Rapids is 55 miles north of Grand Rapids and within 200 miles of Chicago and Detroit.

In an effort to keep pace with changing needs and advances in technology, the Ferris campus has been updated and renovated over the years. The 600 acres of rolling hills along the western bank of the Muskegon River is dotted with 81 modern campus buildings.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

Ferris offers more than 100 educational programs through the Colleges of Allied Health Sciences, Arts and Sciences, Business, Education, Pharmacy, Technology, and Optometry.

These offerings lead to bachelor's and associate degrees and certificates and also include master's degrees in information systems management and career and technical education and doctorates in optometry and pharmacy.

For the most part, each college encompasses a cluster of related programs which are targeted to prepare students for specific careers. The colleges operate in facilities which have been specially designed and equipped to support their missions.

Ferris is a national leader in the development of the concept of laddering, which enables students to advance their careers by building on previous training. For example, an individual who has gained employment after completing a two-year degree may later seek career advancement by returning to Ferris and earning a bachelor's degree. This concept also permits students to readily transfer into Ferris programs.

The University library system, which consists of the Abigail S. Timme Library and a branch facility, the Health Sciences Library, houses a collection approaching three guarters of a million books, periodicals, Michigan and U.S. government documents, research reports, audio-visual and other materials. The libraries' holdings are integrated by format and linked electronically through the Online Public Access Catalog (OPAC). The local area network (LAN) hosts an expanding collection of locally loaded commercial databases. Searching these sources is an option from residence halls, microcomputer labs and offices located around campus.

The Timme Library is a depository for U.S. Bureau of Census and State of Michigan publications, and shares this status with Northwestern Michigan College for other federal documents. It also is designated a Patent and Trademark Depository Library. The Timme Library houses the campus libraries' media collection and microcomputer/Internet access in an area called the Individualized Learning Center (ILC). The University Archives contains materials related to Ferris State University's history as well as official records and faculty publications.

Electronic access to the University's library holdings and those of a growing number of other institutions in the northwest quadrant of lower Michigan is made possible through Ferrisnet, which was established to foster interlibrary cooperation. In addition to participating in the MichiCard Program the University provides Internet access. As a subscriber to OCLC and its document delivery system, the Ferris libraries are connected to more than 20,000 national and international libraries/information centers whose resources are available through Interlibrary Loan and reciprocal agreements.
