Inside UA&M

Most university faculty and staff members have returned to campus with staggered schedules to reduce density on campus. Ferris dining centers, the University Center and several other facilities are open to the public.

COVID19 information page is accessible by visiting ferris.edu. Positive case totals are updated every Thursday afternoon. The total as of this past Thursday was 53 cases, including an individual who was present in the offices of UA&M on September 3.

The University started the semester on August 31 with blended online and in-person classes.

The fall headcount university wide is 11,165, which is down 10.5% (1,307 students). KCAD headcount is 721, which is down 17.6% (154 students). The good news is that this semester, we experienced the smallest decline in continuing students (210) over the past 5 years. KCAD also experienced a slight increase in FTIACs.

The general fund budget has been cut $20.2M, including 118.5 positions cut university wide.

The Ferris Foundation announced that the Now & Always campaign exceeded $100M as of September.

A new Ferris homepage was launched on August 10. It is designed to enhance effectiveness with recruiting new students.
